

An aerial photograph of a coastal region. A wide, light-colored river or estuary flows from the top left towards the center. To the right of the river is a dense, dark green forested area. Further right, a residential area with numerous small buildings and roads is visible. The bottom left shows a more developed area with roads and some buildings. The overall tone is somewhat muted, with a mix of greens, browns, and greys.

The Byron Conspiracy

Written and Compiled by
Jim Mangleson 1994